

Title information

It's Coming Home (Probably)

England's Football Team and One Man's Many Years of Hurt

By John McNicoll

Key features

- A fans' eye view of the England football team from World Cup Italia 90 to the modern day, ahead of Euro 2024
- Takes the reader back to the tournaments of Italia 90, Euro 96, Russia 2018 and Euro 2020, where England came so close bringing football home
- Includes fresh insight from players and those who were there, detailed and in-depth archive research and a breakdown of team statistics from the period covered
- Colour photo section that includes spectacular images of dramatic last-minute moments
- Publicity campaign planned including radio, newspapers, websites, podcasts and magazines

Description

You're almost there, 90 minutes away from a major final. Italia 90, Euro 96, Russia 2018. Or you're in a major final at Wembley, just like the boys of 66. Visualising the England captain lifting silverware, like those immortal images of Bobby Moore. It's Coming Home echoes across England. Surely the trophy drought is coming to an end this time. Except it doesn't... and you're back to square one. That's what supporting the England football team has been for more than fifty years. It should come with a health warning. There have been so many near moments as teams aim to sit at the top table, alongside the heroes of 1966, but so far no team has achieved it. There have been many moments but ultimately it's been a catalogue of glorious failures. From Gazza's tears in 1990, Stuart Pearce redeeming himself at Euro 96, to extra-time agony in Russia and penalty heartbreak once again under the Wembley arch. This book contains all the highs and lows as we continue to kick every ball with our national team. It's Coming Home (Probably) is one man's many years of hurt.

Details

Publication: 8 April 2024
Price: £12.99
ISBN 13: 9781801501866
Format: 216mm x 138mm
Binding: Paperback
Extent: 272 pages
Category: Football

Trade Orders to:

Macmillan Distribution (MDL),
Cromwell Place, International Business Park,
Lime Tree Way, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG24 8YJ

Telephone: 01256 302692
Email: orders@macmillan.co.uk