Description

Turning Points: Moments that Defined Football History dives into the archives to uncover some of the most important stories from the annals of football, showcasing the moments that blew the winds of change. Discover how the FA's decision to ban women's football in 1921 changed the course of the whole game, how a wrongly disallowed goal in 1973 catapulted Total Football to the world stage, how Marc-Vivien Foe's death in 2003 led to crucial changes that saved Christian Eriksen's life 19 years later, and how Frank Lampard's 'ghost goal' against Germany in 2010 galvanised the debate on goal-line technology. From Johan Cruyff and Arrigo Sacchi to David Beckham and David Silva, the book features a parade of some of the greatest football figures of all time, alongside the moments that changed opinions and shaped the course of world football history.
